A REALITY CHECK - A national study (July 2014)

Agewell Foundation carried out a national level study to study the status of human rights of Older people in India, to assess the perceptions about human rights of older people in India, to identify responsible factors for dismal status of elderly human rights protection and to suggest or recommend some specific points to policy makers, planners and decision makers so that human rights of older people could be strengthened in future.

For the survey a representative sample of 50000 older people (27000 from rural areas and 23000 from urban areas) were interviewed spread across 300 districts of 25 states & Union Territories of India. Agewell volunteers' network spread across the country worked as interviewers for the survey. The interviews were conducted during the month of June 2014.

Data collected during the survey from the state of Rajasthan and Delhi was also analysed separately.

Conclusion of the Study

Level of awareness about human rights of older people in Indian society, particularly among older persons is very low. Being a developing country, despite fast increasing elderly population, there is no special focus on rights of elderly. Therefore protection of human rights of older people is still not a major issue for most Indians. Largely, over the years, India has developed into a complex society, with a wide mix of traditional values and modern lifestyle. Older people have acute sense of rights and wrongs, but they generally don't ask for specific provisions and applications for themselves.

Housing in old age

Most old people live in their own houses, with their families, but their living conditions are not comfortable and their harassment/mistreatment has become a common phenomenon. Housing conditions of most elderly are not healthy and comfortable. In urban areas there is an emerging trend of institutional care of older people living alone. There is a striking increase in destitute, abandoned and dejected elderly, mostly in big cities, forced to live in pathetic conditions without any support system.

Food in old age

Proper and nutritious food is one of the major concerns in old age for many older people of India. Safe drinking water is another core concern in old age.

Financial status of older people

There is a contradiction so far as financial status of older people is concerned. Many older people have higher net worth value but they are hardly financially independent. They have to depend on their family members for their financial matters due to factors like financial illiteracy, declining health status, dependence on family members, etc.

Gainful engagement in old age

Despite willingness and ability to work in old age, there are hardly any gainful engagement opportunities for older people to get decent job and keep them active. In urban areas elderly people are suffering a lot due to non-availability of gainful engagement in old age.

Social security system

Status of old age social security system including old age healthcare facilities is dismal as many older persons still have no access to primary healthcare in old age.

Safety and security in old age

Safety and security in old age matters most for older persons as most of them find themselves marginalized and isolated. In urban areas since social interaction of older people is limited, they are more prone to become soft target of anti-social elements.

Disability in old age

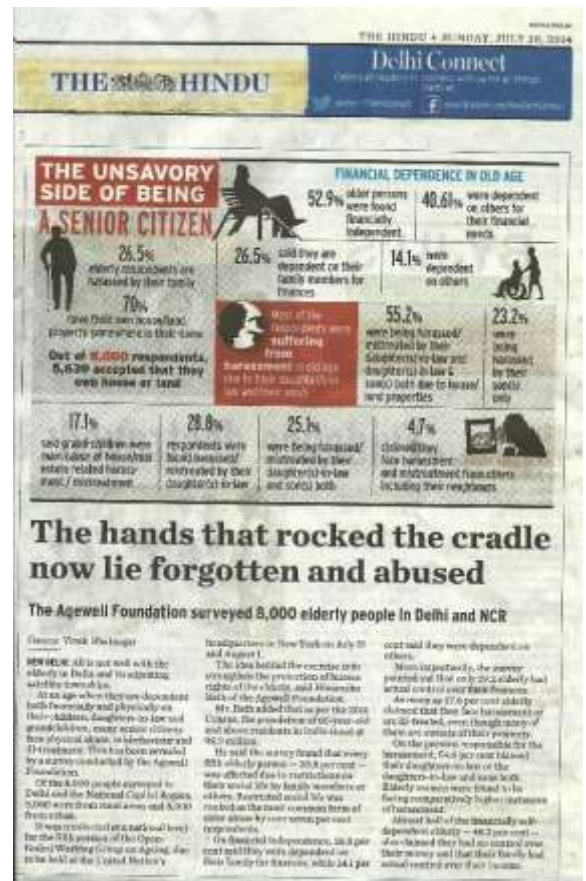

Disability is a common phenomenon in old age, particularly in prime old age. Accidents and chronic illness are major causes of disability in old age. Disabled elderly need special attention and care.

Elder abuse

With popularity of nuclear family older people have become victim of elder abuse including, misbehave /Mistreatment, restricted social life, abuse/mental torture, denial of basic needs, physical harassment /assault, etc. Since most of the elderly spend their life within four-walls, they are primarily abused/harassed by their own family members with various excuses.

Age discrimination

Though age discrimination is prevalent throughout the Indian society, still it is not considered as big challenge by concerned stakeholders in India. In fast changing demographics and socio-economic scenario, older people have now started raising their voice against age discrimination.

GENDER DISCRIMINATION AMONG OLDER WOMEN IN INDIA
- A national study
(February 2015)

Gender Discrimination in Old Age

Gender inequality is prevalent in India for centuries, which is deep-rooted in almost all Indian communities. Health, education, economic and political inequalities between men and women in India is common. Gender discrimination deprives women from availing benefits of development even in old age and marginalizes them from the mainstream.

Research & Advocacy Centre at Agewell Foundation has carried out a nationwide survey to study the issues related to gender discrimination in old age in India. For the survey a representative sample of 50000 older persons (27500 from rural areas and 22500 from urban areas) were interviewed spread across 330 districts of 26 states & Union Territories of India. Agewell volunteers' network spread across the country worked as interviewers for the survey. The interviews were conducted during the month of December 2014 and January 2015.

Data collected during the survey from Delhi, Rajasthan and Uttar Pradesh was also analysed separately.

Conclusion of the Study

In changed socio-economic and demographic set up of India, elderly women face increased incidences of age discrimination, ageism, elder abuse and mistreatment of older community, which are strictly against any civilized society.

Awareness about gender equality in the society, particularly among older persons and protection of basic and human rights of elderly women is very urgent, particularly in view of their longevity.

To decrease the incidences of age-discrimination within families, society and at national level various gender equality supportive measures need to be undertaken at various levels.

In India there is an urgent need for inclusive social security program for older women at grass root level while utilizing tools like value based education, awareness generation, research & advocacy in order to protect basic and human rights of older persons with special attention on elderly women.

In view of fast-paced modern lifestyle, ever-widening intergenerational gap, longevity of elderly women and comparatively miserable living conditions of elderly women, there is a pressing need to;

- Inculcate a sense of responsibility towards needs & rights of older women through curriculum of schools and colleges and promote traditional joint family system.
- Policy formulation of social security schemes dedicated to elderly women with special focus on widows, dejected, dependent elderly women and its implementation with a practical approach.
- Encourage social interaction of elderly women through various governmental, non-governmental, individual mediums like Social Patrol, Health check-up initiatives, etc.
