AGEWELL - HELPLINE FOR OLDER PERSONS

Agewell Foundation aims to disabuse the popular mindset that regards old age with a sense of pity for their helplessness. Replacing it with an attitude of confidence, fostering respect for them and encouraging fortitude in them. And bringing a little certainty, even fun, into their lives. A network of thousands of volunteers is already at work in given areas. They are constantly alert to attend to matters of medical or emotional nature, affairs to do with security, as well as legal and financial advice. They are spread across 768 districts of India so that no cry for help goes unanswered. Agewell extends a helping hand to over 25,000 people daily across India.

Objective and methodology of the Agewell Helpline:

- ✚ To identify and assist the needy. Understand their specific requirements, immediate as well as in long-term.
- ✚ Assist them in identifying and availing the best possible offerings as per their needs from all other voluntary organizations, NGOs, Govt. bodies and international organisations.
- ✚ Counsel them. Help them rebuild themselves. Rekindle the self-confidence.
- ✚ Assess the impact of disaster on individual life and families.
- ✚ Organize counseling and community participation activities

Agewell Helpline for Older Persons also works as a bridge between the assistance seekers and the assistance providers.

AGEWELL - RESEARCH & ADVOCACY CENTRE (FOR NEEDS & RIGHTS OF OLDER PERSONS)

The Agewell Centre for Ageing is committed to bringing in a dynamic change for the Older Persons in terms of social participation & integration, economic security, macro societal change and development, healthy ageing, enhancing the physical and mental quality of life and ushering in care systems in diverse cultural, socio-economic and environmental situations.

The research agenda includes studies in policy-related areas of ageing where the findings may have practical and realistic application. Agewell undertakes advocacy on issues of concern for the welfare of the elderly with the government, national and international agencies, elected representatives, e.g., parliamentarians, bureaucrats, political parties, business, industry and other structures of power & media at all levels.

Agewell attempts to initiate more extensive and comprehensive studies on the Older Persons, so that emerging needs, problems and rights of the older persons could be identified, understood & analysed in a completely changed socio-economic scenario, drawing a roadmap for the empowerment of older persons.

Over the years, Agewell Foundation has also participated in all sessions of the United Nations Open-Ended Working Group on Ageing and submitted its representations/study reports from time to time. In addition, it has also represented older persons of the country at various other international/united Nations forums.

Study reports submitted to the United Nations by Agewell Foundation are also available on the United Nations website <https://social.un.org/ageing-working-group/thirteenthsession.shtml>

Agewell has conducted over 50 research studies over the years. During the year under report, Agewell Foundation has conducted the following surveys/research studies;

Status of Accessibility and Infrastructure in India With Special Focus on Participation of Older People in Public Life and Decision-Making May 2024

To coincide with the 14th working session of the Open-ended Working Group on Ageing, held at the United Nations Headquarters, New York, USA, Agewell Foundation conducted a National-level Study, titled “Status of Accessibility and Infrastructure in India with Special Focus on Participation of Older People in Public Life and Decision-Making” during April 2024.

The study is now also available on the United Nations' conference website <https://social.un.org/ageing-working-group/fourteenthsession.shtml> under Documents submitted by NGOs. Click this link to view the detailed report - <https://social.un.org/ageing-working-group/documents/fourteenth%20session/Documents%20submitted%20by%20NGO%20-%20Agewell%20Foundation.pdf>.

The study reveals that the current status of Accessibility, Infrastructure, and participation in public life of older persons in India is not quite satisfactory and older persons have very limited roles in decision-making processes at almost all levels. During the survey, 10,000 older persons across India were interacted with by Agewell volunteers.

Salient findings of the Study include the following;

Healthcare infrastructure

- ✚ Among the total respondents, 24.6% of the elderly said that the status of healthcare Centers and services in their areas is poor.
- ✚ The percentage was quite higher in rural areas, where 39% of the elderly were not happy with the situation of healthcare facilities and services.

- In urban areas, 11.7% of elderly respondents accepted that the condition of healthcare infrastructure is critical in their area.
- 35.6% of elderly respondents said that the current status is average in their opinion.
- 24.1% of elderly respondents termed the current status of healthcare infrastructure as good
- only 13.3% of elderly respondents (6.3% in rural areas and 19.6% in urban areas) were fully satisfied with the status of current healthcare infrastructure for older persons
- Poor healthcare infrastructure is a major hurdle to accessing healthcare in old age itself according to 23.5% of elderly respondents.
- Higher healthcare costs is a major constraint to accessing the healthcare infrastructure according to 20.2% of elderly respondents (23.17% rural and 17.% urban elderly).

Transport infrastructure

- 27.1.5% of elderly respondents (32.5% rural elderly respondents and 22.2 urban elderly respondents) think that transport infrastructure is poor or very poor.
- 22.2 % of older persons who interacted during the survey said that the status of existing transport infrastructure is average.

Senior-friendly infrastructure: Growing need of the hour

To ensure the continued participation of seniors in different strata of life, it is crucial to create environments that support their independence, health, and well-being

In a rapidly changing world, where populations are aging at an unprecedented rate, the need for senior-friendly environments has become a critical issue across the globe. Undoubtedly, seniors are not only rich sources of knowledge, experience, and wisdom but also a treasure trove of financial resources and political power. Their contribution to the economy, industry, society, and politics is indispensably significant, and yet, they often struggle for their participation in mainstream society.

Older people have long been a pillar of strength in society. As a result of their vast life experience, they provide invaluable perspectives that guide decision-making across various sectors, from finance to business, governance, and even technology. Beyond their intellectual contributions, seniors contribute financially to the economy by creating jobs, contributing to pension funds, or investing in industries that employ younger generations. Studies indicate that the global spending power of older people has grown significantly in recent decades. In the US alone, seniors' spending power was estimated at around $8.3 trillion in 2021.

Struggles for participation in mainstream society

Despite the immense value older people bring to society, they are often excluded from fully participating in mainstream life due to age-related challenges. The primary barrier for many seniors is inadequate infrastructure, which hinders their ability to engage in daily activities and social interactions. The design of many urban spaces, transportation systems, and even residential communities often prioritizes the needs of younger, more able-bodied individuals, leaving seniors to struggle with mobility issues, healthcare access, and social isolation.

In many parts of the world, the rate of aging is increasing rapidly, with more people living longer than ever before. According to the World Health Organization (WHO), the global population aged 60 years and older is expected to double by 2050, reaching approximately 2.1 billion people. This demographic shift poses significant challenges in terms of providing adequate support and ensuring that older people can continue to live fulfilling lives, free from unnecessary burdens.

Senior-friendly infrastructure in South Asian countries and around the world

While many high-income countries have begun to prioritize senior-friendly infrastructure, the same cannot be said for many South Asian nations and developing regions, where a combination of economic constraints and a lack of awareness of the elderly's needs results in insufficient accommodations for this growing demographic.

In South Asia, countries like India, Pakistan, Bangladesh, and Sri Lanka are home to some of the fastest-growing elderly populations globally. In India alone, the elderly population is expected to reach 173 million by next year. However, the region faces significant gaps in terms of senior-friendly infrastructure. In rural areas, healthcare access remains a challenge, and social isolation is widespread due to traditional familial structures breaking down and the migration of younger people to urban centers in search of work.

In countries like Japan, South Korea, and Singapore, senior-friendly infrastructure has been integrated into public policy and urban planning. These countries have taken proactive steps, such as the introduction of elderly-friendly public transport systems, elderly housing projects, and community engagement programs that ensure seniors are as active part of social life.

Current scenario

The health, infrastructure, particularly in low- and middle-income countries, often falls short of addressing the specialized needs of older people. The aging process is associated with a variety of health issues, including chronic diseases such as hypertension, diabetes, arthritis, and dementia. Social isolation, a growing concern in many countries, is compounded by inadequate facilities for recreation, community engagement, and leisure activities tailored to seniors' needs. The legal infrastructure, too, is often not sufficiently designed to protect seniors' rights. Many older people are subject to elder abuse, whether physical, emotional or financial.

Legal surrounding, pensions, inheritance, and property rights are often outdated or unenforced, leaving seniors vulnerable to exploitation and discrimination.

Economically, the situation is even more dire in some parts of the world. In many South Asian countries, older people continue to face economic hardships, particularly in the absence of formal pension systems or retirement savings.

Why seniors need a friendly environment

To ensure the continued participation of seniors in different strata of life, it is crucial to create environments that support their independence, health, and well-being. A senior-friendly environment encompasses not only physical infrastructure but also social, economic, and legal systems that enable older people to live dignified lives.

Health and well-being | A senior-friendly environment allows for the effective management of health conditions. Accessible healthcare services, including specialized geriatric care, are essential for addressing the unique medical needs of older people. Additionally, having community spaces and recreational facilities designed for seniors promotes physical and mental health by encouraging exercise, socialization, and cognitive engagement.

Social inclusion | A senior-friendly environment fosters social engagement by creating spaces for intergenerational interaction and reducing the risk of social isolation. Senior-friendly policies can include community centers, senior citizen clubs, volunteer opportunities, and technology training programs to ensure that seniors remain active participants in social and cultural activities.

Economic empowerment | Seniors should be able to contribute economically, whether through continued employment, entrepreneurship, or volunteering. A friendly environment offers opportunities for seniors to remain financially independent, access appropriate employment, or engage in philanthropic ventures that benefit society as a whole.

Legal protection | A senior-friendly environment includes a robust legal framework that safeguards seniors' rights and protects them from abuse and exploitation.

Challenges of inadequate infrastructure

The challenges posed by poor infrastructure are multifaceted. Seniors often face mobility difficulties due to inadequate public transportation, poor road conditions, and a lack of senior-friendly facilities in public spaces. In many places, healthcare infrastructure is not geared toward the needs of older people, and access to specialized care is limited. Social isolation is another significant issue, particularly for seniors who live alone or are far removed from extended family members. Financial insecurity due to a lack of pensions or retirement savings also adds to the pressure on older individuals.

Role of concerned stakeholders

Government must implement policies and regulations that mandate senior-friendly infrastructure, such as accessible public transportation, healthcare, and affordable housing.

Architects and urban planners need to design cities and communities that are accessible to people of all ages and abilities, ensuring that public spaces, roads, and transportation systems meet the needs of older people.

Healthcare providers must offer specialized care for older people, including geriatric services, mental health support, and home healthcare options.

Civil Society Organizations can advocate for the rights of seniors and provide critical support in areas such as elder abuse prevention, social inclusion, and financial literacy.

Families and local communities play a critical role in providing informal caregiving and creating a supportive environment for seniors, reducing the risks of isolation and neglect.

Creating senior-friendly environments, both in terms of infrastructure and social participation, is essential for ensuring that older people can continue to thrive and contribute to the world around them. By addressing the gaps in health, social, legal, and economic infrastructure, societies can ensure that older people remain active participants in all aspects of life.

Governments, communities, and individuals must work together to foster an environment where seniors can live independently, with dignity and respect, contributing to the growth and development of society as a whole.

Socio-economic infrastructure

-  26% of elderly respondents reportedly said that the level of existing socio-economic infrastructure is poor or very poor. According to every third of elderly respondents (33.5%) it is average.
-  82.4% of digitally illiterate respondents reportedly claimed that they consider themselves as a marginalized and underprivileged lot of society in new settings, which is governed by modern IT and the internet.

Participation of older persons in public life

-  Approx. 21.9% of respondents said that they were somewhat dissatisfied while 20.5% said that they were fully dissatisfied with the existing level of elderly participation
-  Interestingly, it was also revealed that 80.1% of the older person respondents (81.5% male and 78.4% female) cast their votes during the last elections
-  gainful engagement opportunities in old age are the most popular measure according to 54.1% of respondents

Agewell Foundation's recommendations, based on survey findings and observations

-  Develop and create older persons-friendly infrastructure in the country, be it healthcare, transport, socio-economic, or digital to facilitate their access and participation in the mainstream.
-  Special focus should be given to dedicated healthcare services for older persons
-  Explore gainful engagement creating opportunities for retired older people
-  Create an older persons-friendly environment in the country to ensure better access to transport, communication, and other support services in old age
-  To promote the participation of older persons in mainstream activities and increase their role in decision-making processes at different levels

AGEWELL “SHARE THE WARMTH” CAMPAIGN A WINTER INITIATIVE FOR THE DESTITUTE & ELDERLY

Agewell Foundation conducted the “Share the Warmth” campaign to ensure no needy & destitute old person is deprived of warmth in Delhi-NCR during the year. Agewell has been conducting this campaign since 2010.

During the year 2024-25 the campaign was conducted from November 2024 to February 2025. Agewell conducted the process of mobilizing donations & collection of old/used woollens from across Delhi & NCR & distribution of woollens amongst poor & needy older persons.

Agewell Foundation set up Collection Points at prominent locations, posh colonies, Clubs, Residents Welfare Associations, Corporate offices across Delhi NCR. Hundreds of Agewell volunteers spread across Delhi & NCR dedicated their time & efforts to make this initiative a great success.

Under the campaign, over 1.35 lac pieces of woollens, etc collected and distributed amongst over 75,000 destitute and older people through distribution camps set up by volunteers across Delhi-NCR.

Major supporters of the campaign were Blessings Clinic, India Habitat Centre, GAIL India, IMT Ghaziabad, Amity University, Sumitomo Mitsui Banking Corporation, Tower Vision, ITC Limited, etc.

AGEWELL EMPLOYMENT EXCHANGE FOR OLDER PERSPMS

Old age notwithstanding, there are goals to achieve. Agewell strongly subscribes to that view and sees a tremendous opportunity in gainful re-employment. Indeed, many jobs could well use their skills and expertise, and of course, their years of experience. Agewell attempts to bring the opportunity seekers and providers together.

✚ An Intergenerational Initiative, as a gainful engagement for retired older persons Community involvement and to pursue opportunities for complete development of their potential ✚ Launched Eklavya Scheme (Home Tutors & Easy Accounts schemes).

Agewell Employment Exchange for Older Persons received over 1200 calls/visits from older persons during the year 2024-25.

DIGITAL LITERACY PROGRAM FOR OLDER PERSONS (In Delhi & NCR)

With the increasing role of modern communication and information technology in day-to-day life, digitally illiterate individuals (particularly 55+) find themselves totally lost and find it difficult to remain in the mainstream. In view of the gravity of the situation, there is an urgent need to bridge the knowledge and intergenerational gap in society.

Agewell Foundation has been conducting the Digital Literacy Program for Old People since April 2016 in Delhi-NCR to empower them and make them computer literate, so that they can adjust themselves in modern fast-paced life and lead a more comfortable and respectable life in old age. The program is bringing a qualitative change in the lives of elderly and helping in bridging the generation gap and bringing generations together.

Over 21000 digitally illiterate older persons have benefited from the program during the year.

The Ratan Tata Endowment Foundation also supported the project during the year.

Project Sanjeevani

Retrofitting & Gainful Engagement In Old Age With Special Focus On Employment Generation

Gainful re-employment in old age is a matter of deep concern for many. Some seek it because they remain active despite retirement; others need it to fulfill unfinished responsibilities. For many, it is simply a question of survival, while others pursue it to stay meaningfully engaged. In today's changing socio-economic circumstances, older persons can no longer rely solely on their families or society for support when it comes to gainful engagement.

Drawing on its vast experience and insights, Agewell launched the Project Sanjeevani—an initiative for the Retooling and Gainful Engagement of Retired Persons. The project provides retooling and soft skills training to help retired individuals adapt to new opportunities. It also explores avenues for re-employment and other forms of productive engagement for the ever-growing population of retirees. Through this initiative, needy older persons are trained to become both financially independent and socially self-reliant.

During the year under review, special emphasis was placed on supporting elderly individuals from disadvantaged sections of society. The project was initiated in collaboration with the Ratan Tata Endowment Foundation during the last quarter of 2024-25.

AGEWELL SQUALOR TO SCHOLAR PROJECT (For Supporting School Education Of Children Living In Slums)

During the year 2024-25 Agewell Foundation has continued Agewell Squalor to Scholar Project with the objective to support school education of children belonging to poor families living in slum clusters of Faridabad in the state of Haryana with support from Squalor to Scholar Inc., USA.

Under the project the Foundation is supporting expenses like school fees, uniforms, books and stationery, tuition, transportation expenses, medicines, etc. of children from disadvantaged families. The program is being monitored and coordinated by experienced and retired older persons. Under the project 175 children have been supported.
